

I'm Turning Six Today

(verse 1)

There are things in life that come and go
That change as the winds blow by
They are sweet like pie
They are candy to the eye of a child
It's that time in my life that has come to pass
Like a car on the high way
Or a bright sunny day
A rite of passage to be on my way
Change is difficult for many
But for me it's a thrill
To be right here, where I am right now

*I'm turning six today
I've been five for a while
'Been waiting for this day for so long
I'm turning six today
I'm ready to move on
From that kindergarten class I've loved
It was a great time of my life
One I'll never regret
I'm turning six today
Yeah , today

(verse 2)

My teacher kissed me on my cheek today
I turned red as an apple
And then she cried
And told me it's so hard to say goodbye
She'll never know how the love she showed me
Made a difference in my heart
She's like a nice warm fire
A pretty lady, oh that I'll always admire
Goodbye, goodbye
I'm ready to say hello
Hello, hello, hello
(go to *)

Words & Music by Lee Langdon
© 2004 Langdon